The Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) on Thursday released a one-page simplified Income Tax Returns (ITR) Form-1(Sahaj) for the assessment year 2018-19, similar to that of the previous assessment year. This initiative, the CBDT said, benefitted around 30 million taxpayers who filed their returns in this simplified Form. However, this year, the tax department wants ITR assesseees to provide their salary breakup and businessmen their GST number and turnover. All the seven ITRs are to be filed electronically except for some category of taxpayers, the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) said in a statement.

Here's what Income Tax Returns (ITR) assessee must know:

The new Sahaj form wants you to disclose specific details about your salary. It seeks an assessee's salary details in separate fields and in a breakup format such as allowances that are not exempt, value of perquisites, profit in lieu of salary and deductions claimed under section 16. Though these details are provided in the Form 16 of a salaried employee, now they have to be mentioned in the tax return for clarity of deductions. Significance of Ethics in Education --- By Prof. P. H.Hugar.

Education is not knowledge alone, but also the capacity to utilize it. The quality of education depends on the ability it imparts to make proper use of the learning. In other words, acquiring knowledge coupled with the ability for its proper application is the real education. As such, the traits, which impart the skill of applying the acquired knowledge, are of great significance; without the requisite skill of application, the knowledge is a mere treasure trove in a sealed vault. Education includes all that which completes the personality of an aware and cultured citizen.

True education must, therefore, provide also the skill for application and enable development of the traits, which nurture its future growth. The ethical component of education is an element, which caters to this need. It is in the different ethical values of the knowledge makers that we find the cause for the difference in their contribution, even though they are equipped with the same level of knowledge.

The purpose of education is to produce knowledge makers with the capacity of making the most profitable use of the acquired knowledge. In his convocation address (1922) at the Calcutta University, Sir Asutosh Mookerji, describing the aim, purpose and true functions of the University in the life of a nation, said :

“To my mind the University is a great storehouse of learning, a great bureau of standards, a great workshop of knowledge, a great laboratory for the training as well of men of thoughts as of men of action. The University is thus the instrument of the state for the conservation of knowledge, for the discovery of knowledge, for the distribution of knowledge, and above all, for the creation of knowledge-makers.”

Today education must fulfill the realization of the needs and ideals of the society. Government must transform itself into an agency of society from its role as an instrument of power. National institutions must catalyze the process of social change. The ideals must become the aims of education in our socialist, secular, republican democratic polity.

Individual purity of character alone can revive the parched field, let's regain our good character quickly and all will be well – politics, administration and economic conditions.” This exhortation assumes greater significance with the passage of time. Ethical component of education to equip the future.

Generations to meet the growing challenges is the only effective answer. All education must, therefore, be ethics oriented to equip the future nation builders for the performance of their task. The real purpose of education must be fulfilled.
